General

amcase is a modular casework system designed to offer the highest degree of flexibility to the designer or client. All materials used in the manufacturing process meet the specifications and standards of amcase engineering department. amcase use of computer controlled machining systems ensures that the tolerances of the finished product will provide years of trouble free service.

Construction

Cases:

Case construction at amcase uses the 32mm system developed in Europe for frameless cabinets. This 32mm boring system provides the flexibility in the cabinet interior to accommodate the various door and drawer combinations available in the line. All tops, bottoms, backs, sides, and doors of our cases are constructed of 3/4" 45lb. high-density particle board covered with a low pressure melamine laminate. Panel joints are secured using metal camlock fittings. amcase is constructed using a "unibody" side panel. This continuous side panel from floor to worksurface allows for a more direct load transfer to the floor. Back Panels are finished to allow the case to be used to divide a space or free stand. Proper anchoring of the cases is necessary for this type of installation.

Edges:

Case edges are covered with 1mm PVC edgeband thermo-fused to the core. The 1mm color selection matches the board color used on the case. The edges of the doors, drawers and worksurfaces are edgebanded in 3mm PVC edgeband. Corners and edges are radiused. Any standard color 3mm edgeband may be selected to go with any standard color melamine.

Worksurfaces:

The core material is 29mm high-density particle board with a thermofused laminate to both sides and edgebanded with 3mm PVC. High pressure laminate may also be selected as an optional upgrade for worksurfaces. Edge options are 3mm or HPL sanitary edge.

Hardware:

Hinges	270 degree Exposed Knuckle Hinge
Cabinet Pulls	Metal 160mm Wire Pulls
Metal Drawer	Stamped White Epoxy-coated Metal Sides
